

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to wholeheartedly recommend Andy Zhang for their outstanding performance during their summer internship as a Software Engineering Intern at General Motors. Throughout their tenure, Andy demonstrated exceptional technical skills, professionalism, and maturity that truly set them apart.

1. Technical Proficiency:

- Andy exhibited a deep understanding of software development principles and practices. Their coding abilities were impressive, and they consistently delivered high-quality solutions. Whether it was debugging complex issues or implementing new features, he approached every task with enthusiasm and precision.
- Notably, he contributed significantly to the GTEUSI Data lake reporting project, where he was able to use applications and tools he never had before to get to the root of the data. His code was clean, well-documented, and efficiently optimized.

2. Professionalism and Collaboration:

- Andy conducted himself with utmost professionalism. He actively participated in team meetings, provided constructive feedback, and collaborated seamlessly with colleagues. His positive attitude and willingness to learn made him a valuable team member.
- He consistently met deadlines and took ownership of his specific responsibilities or deliverables. His commitment to excellence was evident in every aspect of his work.

3. Composure and Executive Presentations:

- Andy displayed remarkable composure during presentations to executives. He effectively communicated complex technical concepts in a clear and concise manner. His ability to distill intricate details into executive-friendly insights was commendable.
- He handled questions and feedback gracefully, demonstrating maturity beyond his years. His poise and confidence left a lasting impression on both peers and senior leadership.

4. Adaptability and Growth:

- Andy eagerly embraced new challenges and proactively sought opportunities to expand his skill set. He quickly adapted to our dynamic environment, learning from setbacks and continuously improving.
- His growth mindset and resilience will undoubtedly serve him well in his future endeavors.

In summary, Andy is an exceptional individual who embodies the qualities we seek in our interns and future software engineers. I have no doubt that he will excel in any role he chooses to pursue.

Please feel free to reach out to me if you need any further information or have additional questions about Andy, I wholeheartedly endorse him for any opportunity that comes his way.

Sincerely,
